Good Evening,

I'd like to say that I think the appointment of Carla Carr to the Human Right's Commission looks like an excellent choice, I wish her the best and hope that she will be a great addition to the committee.

On a procedural note, I'd like to request that the Board consider a couple of changes in the application process (for Boards and Commissions specifically).

1. I believe all applications should be made public as they are received, not just the application of the person who is selected. The public shouldn't have to put in a public records request to find out who has applied to a position.
2. In addition to the "we've received your application" email, you should consider letting each applicant who is not chosen know by email that somebody else was selected.

Thanks,

Dawn Wolfson
