Dear Board of Supervisors,

Re: Appeal for Denied Work Permit Application

I hope this letter finds you well. I am writing to respectfully appeal the decision to deny my work permit application. I understand the primary concern in the denial was related to previous arrests. I deeply regret the mistakes I made during that time. However, I would like to provide further context and express my sincere commitment to continuing my personal and professional growth.

In the past, I made poor decisions that led to my arrests. The incident that was mentioned was shoplifting in 2016. At that time, I was 18 years old & I do not recall that arrest, or else I would have definitely mentioned that on my application. I apologize. I failed to remember that, & had just put my more recent incidents. I can fully understand why these other incidents may be seen as a possible issue, but I'd like to express how I have put in effort to turn my life around.

I have taken full responsibility for my past and made conscious efforts to learn from those mistakes. These experiences have shaped me into the hard-working and responsible person I am today. I own and operate my own business, which is something I take great pride in. It has taught me the importance of integrity, dedication, and accountability. Since my last arrest, I have consistently worked to maintain a clean record. I have quit drinking and committed myself to being a positive influence in my community.

I am seeking the opportunity to work in the card room not only because it would provide me with a stable source of income but also because it would allow me to further demonstrate the progress I have made. I believe my experience, maturity, and lessons learned throughout my life will allow me to contribute positively to the environment in the card room.

I fully understand the importance of upholding the regulations and requirements for a work permit, and I am committed to complying with all legal and ethical standards. I am asking for the opportunity to prove that I deserve this chance. I am not the same person I was when I made those mistakes. I would be highly grateful for the opportunity to discuss my appeal further and provide additional information that may assist in your decision. I have plenty of references and family members who can attest to the changes I have made.

Thank you for considering my appeal and for your time and attention. I hope to get a second chance to prove my willingness and dedication.

Sincerely,

Sarah Caldie
