being open to new ideas while @ the same time collecting data upon which to build events, projects, and programs that will help the residents, businesses, and organizations thrive, not merely and barely survive.

I am most interested @ this point of my tenure on CEDAC in creating a viable and dynamic action plan that includes accountability for all involved. I further wish to be a helpful resource and bridge between county govt., various committees and groups, and communities.

I love EDC and am willing to devote my time, talent, and even my "treasures" in order to help create user friendly, "ready-go" programs for economic enhancement. So goes the economy, so goes the community — and vice versa.

Most sincerely,
J. Harper
