Dear Sir,

I am Jorn Winther and my wife Claire and I recently visited Nello and Danica Olivo and were surprised to learn about the neighbor¹s complaints re. drunken parties, violating speed limits and welcoming uninvited guests. I have had the pleasure knowing the Olivo family for decades and count them among my very best friends.

It is important to note that we have been their private guests as well as been invited to several of the events staged for the members of the Rancho Olivo Vineyards Vine Club and these happenings in no way qualifies or have any similarities to people¹s imagination of an out of control drunken Hollywood party. As a matter of fact most parties in Hollywood is respectable and enjoyable. Unfortunately I can¹t tell you if Nello¹s wine is any good because both my wife and I are non-drinkers but knowing the care and hard work Nello and his workers embrace their work and the awards their vine have harvested I am sure it is splendid. We never encountered more than app. 40 guests of any of the events we experienced and wine was enjoyed but so was the delicious food and there was plenty of that.

Mr. Olivo also runs an extensive and very successful plumbing business employing many people.

Both Nello and Danica are multi task people who recently sold their Restaurant in Placerville I have been there many times as well and it was highly touted for an exquisite menu and again employed many people. I was born in Denmark many rainbows ago and California wine has surpassed French wine in EUROPE and is very good for the American economy and the local vineyards are to be applauded for their part. It is tough to understand the complaints considering their place is pretty isolated and in California we have many gated communities in Palm Springs where I lived for 7 years everything was gated so most people understand the speed limits and personally I have never seen it violated at Nello and Danica¹s home.

To sum up: I look up to the Olivo¹s and wish I had more of their passion, energy and generosity. Their neighbors are lucky to have them instead of ganging up on them for whatever reason. They are very good Americans contributing to the economy. Your best solution is to see for yourself but of course you need to be invited.

Sincerely,
Jorn Winther

To whom it may concern,

I have been friends with the Olivo's for quite a while and don't understand why neighboring homes have such a problem with the Olivo's getting a special permit to hold gatherings a couple times per year. They are some of the nicest most sincere people I know and have never done anything to harm the community or show any disrespect to their neighbors.
