‘Help us help wildlife.’

FAWN is a non-profit organization that removes obsolete fencing - with owner permission - using volunteer labor.

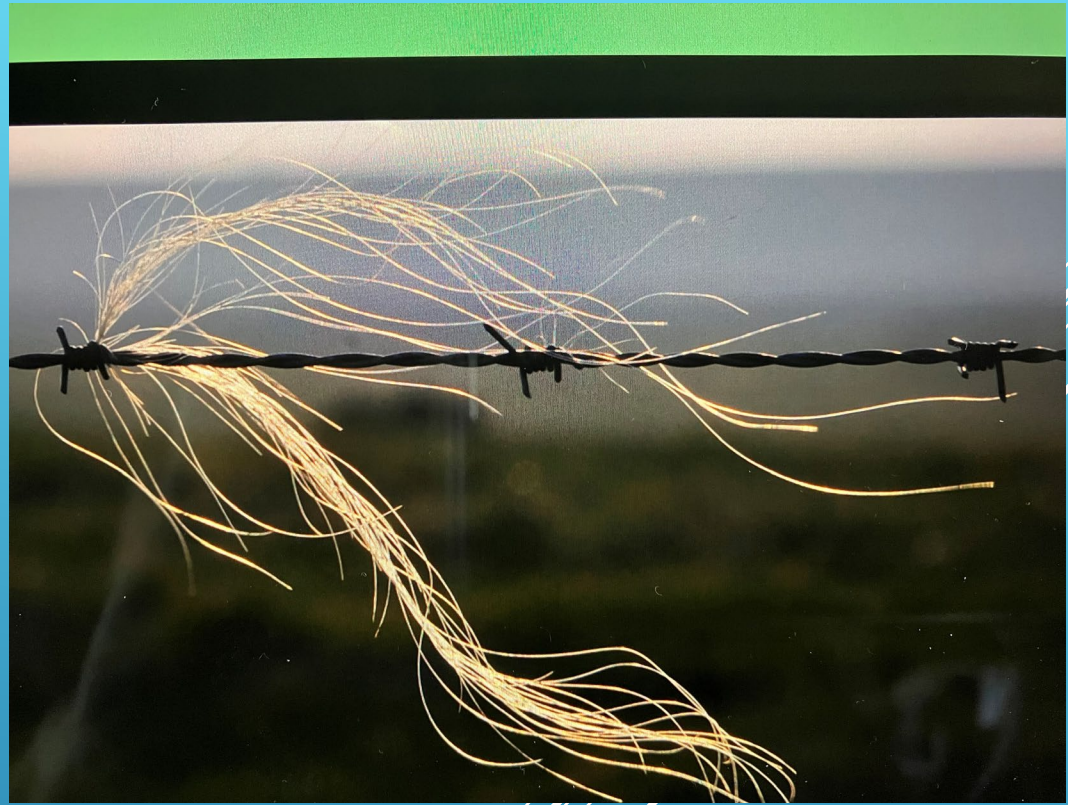

WHO WE ARE...

- Roger & Irene Smith, Founders
- Volunteers
- Public Agency 'Partners'
- Other Supporters

FAWN is a 501(c)(3) corporation

OUR PURPOSE...

Remove obsolete
fencing that poses
a threat to wildlife

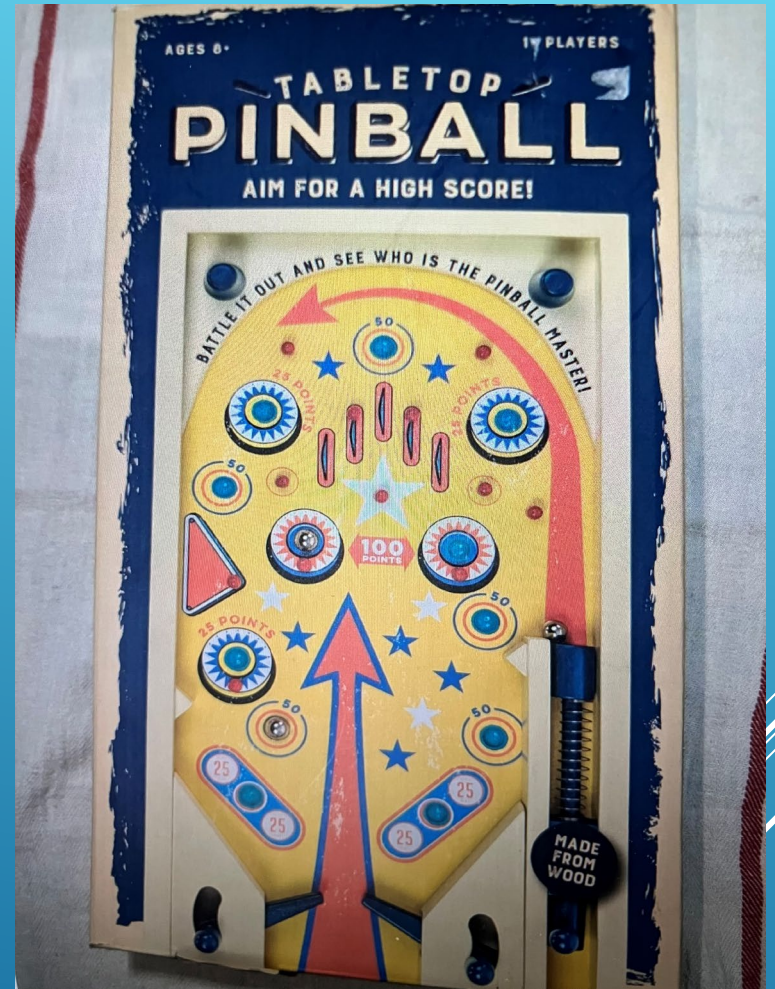

THE PROBLEM...

- entrapment & death
- separation of families
- interference with migration
- starvation

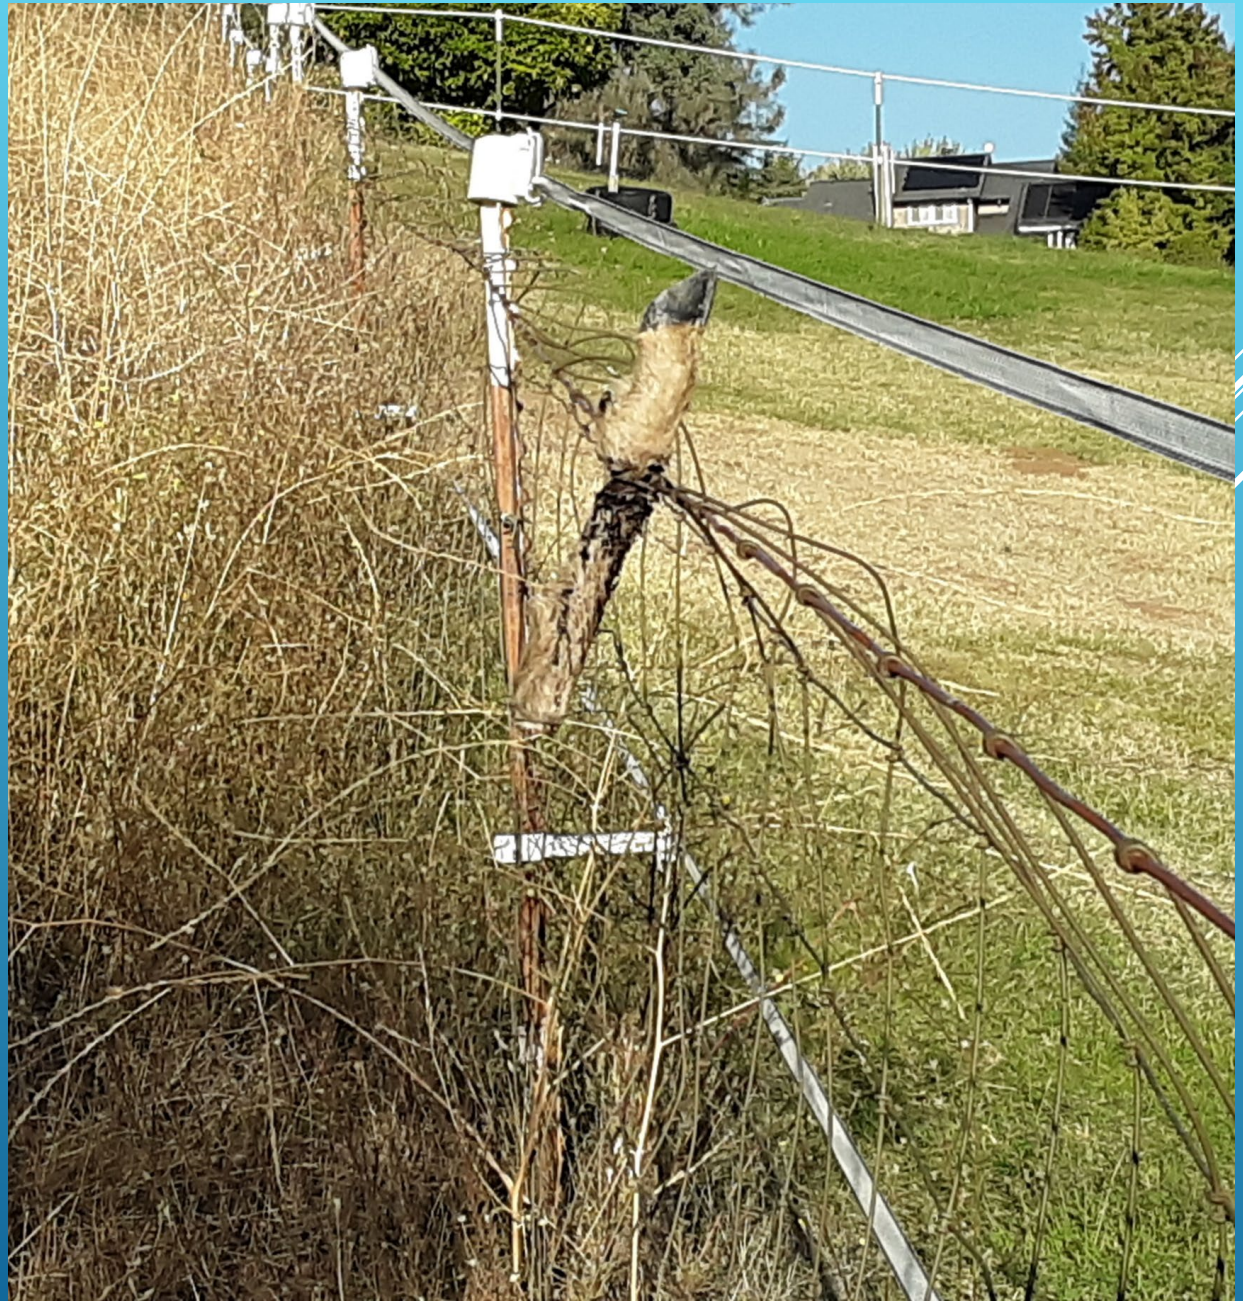

OLD FENCING IS EVERYWHERE !

RESIDENTIAL FENCE TYPES

CAN POSE A PROBLEM TOO

NEW FENCE DESIGN TIPS

Consider...

- wildlife-friendly fencing
 - a 'living fence' for privacy
Use plants or trees as fences
 - fencing smaller 'zones'
Leave areas for wildlife passage
 - eliminate extra 'top wire' strands
 - or... No fencing at all !
Do you really need it?

A photograph showing a wire snare trap set along a paved road. The trap consists of a series of rectangular wire loops supported by wooden posts. The top wire of the trap is sagging down, as indicated by the text overlay. The ground is covered with dry grass and some green weeds. In the background, there are trees and a fence. The image is framed by a blue border at the top and bottom.
